Palermo, città mitteleuropea

A partire dalla seconda metà dell'800, movimenti artistici desunti dalla cultura contemporanea mitteleuropea hanno trovato la massima espressione nel Liberty palermitano. Un periodo in cui la città vive un fermento di particolare vivacità sia economico che culturale, un'epoca d'oro nata grazie ad alcune importanti famiglie dotate di eccezionali capacità imprenditoriali: i Florio e i Whitaker.

Palermo diventa crogiuolo in cui prendono vita novità artistiche e culturali, polo d'attrazione per molti personaggi del mondo della scienza e della cultura, artisti e intellettuali che spingono verso una maggiore apertura in senso europeo.

Le aspirazioni della borghesia emergente si riverberano così sull'architettura: per avere una città che possa competere con le altre città Europee nascono edifici raffinati creati per lo spettacolo e il tempo libero, ville e giardini e residenze di prestigio.

Ne possiamo citare alcuni rari esempi - sopravvissuti all'incuria del tempo, delle guerre o dell'uomo - come il complesso "Florio" all'Olivuzza, il villino Favaloro-Di Stefano, il Grand Hotel "Villa Ignea", la biblioteca di Palazzo Francavilla, il villino Basile, il teatro Biondo, Palazzo Agnello-Briuccia. Si sviluppa così un concetto d'architettura intesa come "opera d'arte in tutto" che si concretizza in oggetti d'arredo, affreschi e maioliche, in particolare il vetro e il ferro battuto costituiscono una vera e propria innovazione che consente lo sviluppo di una sorta di "scultura-architettura".

Artigiani, decoratori, mosaicisti, fabbri e vetrai sono chiamati quindi ad inserire negli edifici le proprie produzioni, dettagli di eccezionale fattura che impreziosiscono e rendono unico il Liberty palermitano. In sintonia con tale tendenza, nella realizzazione di rivestimenti, si diffonde il ricorso alla "cementina" in sostituzione alle maioliche "Riggiole", così da creare pavimenti più resistenti e duraturi nel tempo.

È proprio in questo fervore culturale e artistico che nasce una solida realtà aziendale che opera da oltre un secolo nel settore dei pavimenti in graniglia. Dal 1905 ad oggi l'azienda Fogazza ha saputo mantenere quella tradizione inspirata al ricco e variegato universo del Liberty cercando sempre nuove ispirazioni e nuovi spunti inventivi per creare un prodotto perfetto anche per gli ambienti moderni.

Il processo di creazione artigianale si ripete nella gestualità oggi come allora, le marmette nascono una per volta mescolando i colori e versando a mano il composto negli stampi.

Ricercatezza e particolarità, autenticità e unicità rendono le marmette Fogazza il dettaglio che fa la differenza sia in un ambiente classico che moderno.

Palermo, mitteleuropean city

Starting from the second half of the 1800s, artistic movements inspired by contemporary culture in Central Europe found their ultimate expression in the Liberty of Palermo. A time when the city is experiencing heightened economic and cultural vibrance, a golden age sparked by some notable families with exceptional entrepreneurial skills: the Florio and Whitaker. Palermo becomes the crucible where artistic and cultural creativity come to life, a magnet for many personalities from the world of science and culture, artists and intellectuals who are pushing for greater openness on a European level. The aspirations of the emerging middle class thus reverberate on architecture: to have a city that can compete with the other capitals of Europe, refined buildings are built for entertainment and leisure, villas, gardens and residences of high prestige. We can mention some rare examples that have survived the ravages of time, wars or human negligence - like the "Florio" complex all'Olivuzza, villa Favaloro-Di Stefano, the Grand Hotel "Villa Igea", the library of Palazzo Francavilla, villa Basile, the Biondo theatre, Palazzo Agnello-Briuccia.

A concept of architecture originates understood as "artwork everywhere" that takes the form of ornaments, frescos and pottery. Glass and wrought iron in particular represent a genuine innovation that enables the development of a kind of "sculpture-architecture". Craftsmen, decorators, mosaics, locksmiths and glaziers are called then to add their artifacts to buildings, ornamental items of extraordinary workmanship that enrich the Liberty of Palermo and make it unlike any other. In keeping with this trend, builders begin to use "cementina" in foundational works to replace the "Riggiole" majolica, with the aim of creating more durable and long-lasting floors. It is precisely in the midst of this cultural and artistic fervour that a solid business develops, which for over a century has manufactured floors in graniglia. From 1905 to our present day, Fogazza has known how to keep that tradition inspired by the rich and diverse world of Liberty well alive, always looking for new inspiration and new ideas, to create a product that perfectly suits also the modern living space. The handcrafted creative process is the repetition of an intricate series of gestures. Now as back then, the tiles are manufactured one at a time, by mixing colours and pouring the mixture into the moulds. Refinement and detail, authenticity and uniqueness make Fogazza tiles the detail that makes the difference in both a classical and modern environment.

TINTA UNITA

>>> BASIC

Il piacere della classica semplicità, il gusto di arredare la casa utilizzando solo la forza del colore. Un materiale caldo e vissuto come la graniglia o la pura compattezza della pastina per riscaldare gli ambienti della casa. La collezione Tinta Unita è puro colore, come scenografia monocroma di un palcoscenico dove gli unici protagonisti sono gli arredi della casa.

The pleasure of classic simplicity, the taste of decorating the home, using only the power of colour. A warm, vintage material like graniglia, or the pure compactness of pastina to warm up the living space. The Tinta Unita collection is pure colour, like the monochrome design of a stage where the only protagonists are the furnishings of the home.
